OUR STORY

Kitty Hoynes opened July 1999, named after David's mother, Catherine (Kitty) pictured here with David's father, Michael on their wedding day. The roots of Kitty Hoynes started in Thomastown, Co. Kilkenny in 1920, where grandfather, William Hoyne started the bar, grocery, hardware and undertaking business. A typical Irish small town business, which included things like bottling Guinness and whiskey from wooden casks into individually labelled bottles, buying rabbits for export to the UK during World War 2, selling farmers feedstuffs, buying wool from sheep farmers, cutting his own meats for the grocery store, making coffins from scratch, auctioneering land and tillage, stocking builders providers materials, etc. The bar tradition continues today in Syracuse. Look around you and see the many bric-a-brac items from back then. The stained glass pheasant doors and fisherman from Kavanagh's Pub, old road sign from Kilmacthomas, old clay jars from the shop along with the many signs, fixtures and fittings that make Kitty Hoynes a traditional Irish Pub & Restaurant.
